

The Levine Family Lecture Series

2017–2018

Pascaline Dupas

Stanford University

Pascaline Dupas is an associate professor in economics at Stanford University, holds senior fellowships at the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research and the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, and is a co-chair of the Poverty Action Lab's health sector. She received the Best Young French Economist Prize in 2015. Her research studies the challenges that households and governments in developing countries face in relation to a broad range of issues in health, education and finance.

Presents:

“Improving Health Outcomes For The Bottom Billion: What’s Effective and Why?”

Time: 4:00 – 5:30 pm

Date: Tuesday, April 24th

Location: Student Community Center, Multipurpose Room

Sponsored By:

The Levine Family Fund

The Department of Economics, UC Davis

The Levine Family Fund Lectures are free and open to the public

UCDAVIS
DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS